The outcomes of the reviews received for this paper are in general accordance and are in line with my own assessment of the paper.

Clearly, as the reviewers have stated, the work is important and appropriate for the journal and will certainly deserve publication following the submission of a revised version which addresses the comments made by the reviewers.

I encourage the authors to take the comments onboard and prepare a revised version which provides a more in-depth analysis of the model outputs tied closely to the overall aim and objectives of the study.
