In general it would seem that both reviewers are generally supportive of the submitted manuscript.

Therefore, I encourage the authors to proceed and prepare a revised version of the paper.

Please ensure that as many of the requested changes as possible are carried out.

I note the 2nd reviewers request for additional simulations and the author's response. If additional simulations cannot be performed in a meaningful timescale it will be important for the authors to acknowledge the uncertainty this introduces in the interpretation of the results which are already shown.

Reviewer 1 has provided a number of useful suggestions to improve the clarity and structure of the paper.
