

We are excited about the decision to accept the manuscript for publication and appreciate the need to wait for all of the relevant data to have been submitted and available on-line.

Toward that end, we have now submitted all of the datasets used in our study to the NOAA Paleoclimate archive and have updated the related URLs in Table 1 to represent the new file locations. We expect that all of the URLs will be live soon.

The text in the manuscript related to data availability has been updated accordingly.

Thank you for the editorial support and guidance. Please let us know about any additional changes that should be made.